RESEARCH FOCUS AND INTERESTS

My research takes a multi-level approach to improving the health and well-being of patients and healthcare workers alike. I investigate how individual, organizational, and societal factors, including social determinants of health, impact both healthcare worker well-being and patient outcomes. Ultimately, my goal is to apply research and my experiences to drive positive change. By translating project insights into actionable strategies, I aim to influence healthcare practice and policy at local, national, and international levels. My passion lies in bridging the gap between research and practice, ensuring that evidence-based approaches are implemented to improve the well-being of HCWs, enhance patient care, and create healthier communities for all.
